Get the most out of your reading

SQ3R stands for Survey, Question, Read, Recite, and Revue. This is a popular method for reviewing and taking notes on textbook reading assignments, developed by Francis P. Robinson. This method suggests that you use the following five steps for each reading assignment:

S	Survey	Glance at the headings and captions to get a feel for the topic being covered.
Q	Question	Rephrase the headings in your mind as questions, so you have an idea of what information to look for as you continue with the reading.
R	Read	Read each section carefully, keeping in mind those questions you phrased, attempting to answer each question and taking notes on key points.
R	Recite	Write down answers to the questions formed using the headings and summarize findings in written form or out loud.
R	Review	Review your notes the next day and create flash cards based on the material to test yourself the next week and prior to an exam.

The only people who never make mistakes are the ones who don't do anything. Mistakes are part of the dues one pays for living a full life.
