Gateway Culinary program continues popular fine dining nights

Want great food, a great fine dining experience in Racine – but one that will also help culinary students become even more prepared to enter their career?

Gateway Technical College continues its fine dining nights Mondays in the Breakwater Dining Room of the Lake Building on its Racine Campus. The seven-course meal is only $25, prepared and served by Gateway Culinary students in their final semester of the program.

The meal includes non-alcoholic beverage, two appetizers, soup, a garden or specialty salad, two home-made breads, main entrée (diners can choose from three) and dessert.

Students also interact with diners, talking to them about their meal and answering any questions they might have – including ingredients used to actual recipes.

Diners benefit greatly, too, from the great food and ambiance. Fine dining nights are popular -- Gateway has been holding the fine dining nights for more than 25 years.
